Applicant's arguments filed 12/29/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The rejection under 35 USC 103 is maintained for the reasons of record.

In response to applicant's arguments against the references individually, one cannot show nonobviousness by attacking references individually where the rejections are based on combinations of references. See In re Keller, 642 F.2d 413, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981); In re Merck & Co., 800 F.2d 1091, 231 USPQ 375 (Fed. Cir. 1986).

The prior art suggests the claimed invention as the claimed invention as the art teaches a variety of methods for monitoring the needs for cell growth (and other cellular functions) and providing the appropriate substances therefor. As the references clearly indicate that the various proportions and amounts of the ingredients used in the claimed method are result effective variables, they would be routinely optimized by one of ordinary skill in the art in practicing the invention disclosed by those references.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 10-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fei et al(5635387), Hopkins et al(4468455), Vajta et al(6399375), Emerson et al(5646043), Takeuchi et al(5304483), Kearney et al(5424209), Palsson et al(5888807), Grandics et al(5571720) or Pykett et al(6440734) .

Applicant claims a method of growing cells in an enclosure wherein the cells are introduced to the enclosure and media, gasses and growth factors are provided thereto. The cells are then harvested. Applicant appears to be claiming determining the needs of the cells and adding required nutrients, factors, etc as needed or desired.

Fei et al(5635387), Hopkins et al(4468455), Vajta et al(6399375), Emerson et al(5646043), Takeuchi et al(5304483), Kearney et al(5424209), Palsson et al(5888807), Grandics et al(5571720) and Pykett et al(6440734) all teach methods of culturing cells in which media, nutrients, growth factors, air etc are supplied to the cells (including hematopoietic stem cells) in a vessel as needed by the cells. As indicated above, the exact limitations of applicants invention are unclear, however the claimed method would appear to be obvious over the multitude of prior art as because the art teaches a variety of methods for monitoring the needs for cell growth (and other cellular functions) and providing the appropriate substances therefor. As the references clearly indicate that the various proportions and amounts of the ingredients used in the claimed method are result effective variables, they would be routinely optimized by one of ordinary skill in the art in practicing the invention disclosed by those references.

Accordingly, the claimed invention was prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made especially in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
